...sault was one of the RAF's most concentrated, it lasted only 10 minutes. For hours afterward, however, the city was covered with a mile-high cloud of smoke and towering pillars of flame.

In Italy, infantry battles flared again in the beachhead area. American troops smashed their way into German defense lines south of Rome at three points, and also crushed two counterthrusts by the Nazis against the Anzio perimeter.

On other fronts, the Fifth Army and Eighth Army engaged in increased patrol activity.

Across the Adriatic, other reverses were handed the Germans. Yugoslav partisans, who earlier this week stormed two key islands guarding the approaches to the Dalmatian coast, captured two important towns in Croatia. One of the communities occupied was Sveti Ivan Zelina, 15 miles north-east of the Nazi-held Croatian capital of Zagreb; the other was the Ivanec rail center.

Russ Make Ready

The lull in ground action on the Russo-German front continued. However, frontline dispatches said the Soviets are reconstructing their communications and Moscow circles expect a powerful new Red Army offensive to be launched momentarily.

In the Pacific, the Japs reeled under powerful blows by forces of both Gen. Douglas MacArthur and Adm. Lord Louis Mountbatten.

MacArthur, who promised to return to the Philippines, announced completion of an operation launched six days ago. The drive placed American spearheads some 500 miles closer to the Philippines and gave them powerful air bases for probable long-distance bombing raids against enemy positions in that archipelago.

High point of the campaign was the seizure of Hollandia's three vital airstrips and turning them into offensive bases for U. S. planes within the six-day period.

Meantime, within Eastern India a new tank and plane supported counteroffensive by Allied forces near Kohima drove the Japs from several strategic positions and continued to advance. An early showdown battle was expected to be precipitated, with its purpose the complete elimination of the Jap invaders in Assam province.

MAYOR LAUSCHE MEETS BACKERS IN CIRCLEVILLE

Cleveland's mayor, Frank J. Lausche, Democratic candidate for governor, received a representative gathering of Pickaway county Democrats in the second floor parlors of the American Hotel Thursday. Mr. Lausche was enroute to Lancaster where he spoke before a Democrat rally in the Lancaster city auditorium, Thursday evening. His stay in Circleville was brief. Following the reception Mr. Lausche attended the luncheon meeting of the Rotary club, where he spoke briefly.

One of the members of Mr. Lausche's party was a photographer from Life Magazine who took a picture of a group of local men following the Rotary luncheon. Other members of the mayor's party were Edward Quinn, Cincinnati attorney, John Weetsee, former all-American football player also of Cincinnati, and Ralph Kelly political editor of the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

policy is being handled by the secretary of state and to what extent it is being handled privately by the President.

And this is because, he said, "we see reported daily in your newspapers developments from abroad and other statements from high government officials which do not seem to fit in altogether with the words Mr. Hull has used."

Gov. Dewey's address, which was interpreted by political observers as an extension of the frequent declarations he has made in favor of post war international cooperation, emphasized that "in the first few years following the war, inevitably a major responsibility to work together will fall on the United States, Britain, Russia and China."

"They will be the strongest nations," he asserted. "They will be the nations with the greatest power to preserve peace or to undermine it."

And we have learned from the experience of two world wars, he continued, that "we cannot remain unaffected by what happens elsewhere in the world. When we cease to wage war we shall have to wage peace."

Gov. Dewey recalled that the United States had a long background of friendly working relations with Britain and China, which he said should make easy the continuation of such relations. Regarding Russia, he said "it would be stupid to ignore the fact that during the 24 years between the Soviet revolution and the German attack on Russia our relations were not of the best."

But he warned that "if after this war we relapse into the old suspicions, the future is indeed dark." He said there had been faults on both sides.

prevent us from resigning. We are not frozen in our positions." Leslie F. Crews, retail comptroller, declared: "I will support Mr. Avery. I am sure the other officers intend to. I think we will all walk out rather than cooperate with the government, depending, of course, on the turn of events."

A counter blow by Montgomery Ward's was expected to fall today or tomorrow with filing of a petition for an injunction to restrain Taylor and other Washington officials from entering the plant on the ground they are "trespassers."

The injunction granted the government was only one of a dramatic series of rapid-fire events in the battle between federal authorities and Ward's.

The first was the seizure of the plant on President Roosevelt's executive order and with the aid of a platoon of armed military policemen. Then came the forcible eviction of the dignified 69-year-old Avery, then the government's surprise petition for an injunction.

Stealing a march on the militant Avery, Attorney General Francis B. Biddle applied for the injunction against Avery and 15 other company officials in federal district court late yesterday only a few minutes before closing time.

Seizure of the plant was brought on by Avery's repeated refusals to obey War Labor Board directives, one of which was to extend the company's contract with the CIO United Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Employees' Union, which expired last December 7.

The union, which has about 5,500 employees eligible for membership in the Ward plants in Chicago, called a 12-day strike which ended when President Roosevelt ordered the men back to work and at the same time ordered Ward's to renew the contract. Avery refused to renew the contract and the seizure of the plant followed.

and cranberry sauce, up 7 points; tomato juice in large containers, increased 2 points; canned or bottled dry varieties of beans (excluding soy, blackeye and garbanzo), increased 5 tomato catsup and chili sauce, up 7; raspberry and strawberry jams and preserves, up 8 points.

In announcing the point free values of the eight vegetables, Bowles explained that stocks of canned fruits and vegetables from last year must be moved out to free storage space in warehouses and encourage canners to put up as much food as possible this season.

He pointed out that the nation may have a record farm production this year but a "short supply" of canned fruits and vegetables for civilians in 1944. Increased military needs will more than offset production gains, Bowles said, with the supply for civilians expected to be about 20 percent less.

Again, Bowles urged Victory gardeners to surpass last year's production and called for two million additional gardens this Summer.

Bowles also reminded that the weather will play a big part in the nation's supply of food. Unfavorable growing weather would decrease the supply to a serious degree, he said.

The point values of canned and bottled fruits, with the exception of cranberries, remain unchanged for May. Point values on fruits were raised in March to slow down a heavy movement of such products into consuming channels.

Secret weapons, some of which already have been used in central Pacific operations but are unknown to the Japanese since garbisons which they were used against were wiped out, will be in the hands of trained men. Handling of the secret weapons is second nature to the men who already have used them against the enemy.

Airforce authorities in conjunction with the army a few months ago exhibited some of these secret weapons to war correspondents. Beyond saying that some of the weapons employ the rocket principle, information cannot be released at this time for security reasons.

This much may be said: In use against duplicates of fortification types encountered by our forces the weapons have proved shatteringly effective.

A CHICKEN KNOWS that an egg won't hatch unless you sit on it the proper length of time.

As with eggs, so with nest eggs.

The best nest egg in the world today is the War Bond. It's an incomparably safe investment. It pays $4 for every $3 you put up.

But...

In order to get that nice fat interest, you have to sit on a Bond for the proper length of time. 10 years to be exact.

You can get your money before that, any time after 60 days. But you won't get the full benefit. You lose the interest. You take your money out of the fight. You kill off savings that might be a blessing in days when money doesn't flow as freely as it does today.

Buy more War Bonds. Sit on them.

BIRDS AND PEOPLE

ONE of the finest things about this time of year is the zest with which the birds arrive and proceed about their business. They have their spring cleaning and settling to do, much like human people, and after a little friendly loafing and visiting, how they go to it! They "whistle while they work," thus setting a good example to everybody else. Many of them are truly thankful when their human friends scatter around building material for them.

The association and comradeship of men and birds is one of the finest things in life. It is surprising what close friendships can be made when the human people go about it discreetly and avoid embarrassing the bird people by too much attention. The best way to get along with them seems to be just about the same as with human beings. That is, be gentle and kindly with them, avoid frightening them, find what food they like, and make occasional contributions to their own supply.

Such friendly ministrations are likely to be well repaid. But it's not good to pamper them too much. Like human people, they should do some foraging for themselves.

CITIES GETTING BETTER

CITY and state political gangs have just been studied in "The Big Bosses," a new book by Charles W. Van Devander, Washington correspondent of the New York Post. Familiar figures appear, like Hague, Crump, Chicago's Kelly-Nash machine, and Pennsylvania's Pew and Grundy.

The most striking fact is not stated: the brightening of the picture since Lincoln Steffens described public corruption, near the beginning of the century. Then almost every city festered in misrule. About 15 years ago Harold Zink's book, "City Bosses in the United States," could find an example in almost every town.

Today for perfect bossdom Van Devander cites only Albany, Jersey City, Memphis and New Orleans. They are important places, but not to be classed with New York, Pittsburgh, St. Louis and Cincinnati—all former boss-ruled cities which have now largely regained their freedom. Some are still badly administered but not to compare with their plight a generation ago.

Americans still find much room for improvement in city government, but there is no reason for despair.

Free nations may look loose and weak, but seldom go to pieces. The really weak sisters are those tightened up to look strong.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

BIG BUSINESS BREWS TROUBLE

WASHINGTON—Trouble is seething inside the War Labor Board again and this time it has nothing to do with John L. Lewis. On the contrary, it is the employer members and their backstage friends, the National Association of Manufacturers and the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, who are causing the ferment.

For a long time, a frank, friendly and cooperative attitude existed between the three wings of the War Labor Board, representing industry, the public and labor. Roger Lapham, head of the American-Hawaiian Steamship Company, and George Mead, head of The Mead Corporation, paper company of Dayton, Ohio, were especially cooperative. But now, Lapham has left to be mayor of San Francisco, while Mead has been virtually shunted off the board as a result of wire-pulling from the U. S. Chamber and the National Manufacturers Association.

These two organizations have decided to dominate the industry members on the War Labor Board. Fred Crawford, former president of the Manufacturers Association, whose Thompson Products, Inc., of Cleveland has a reactionary labor record, has now organized a joint committee of the NAM and U. S. Chamber.

This committee is for the purpose of virtually instructing WLB industry members how to vote. In other words, industry members no longer are to decide an issue as they see it, but as the joint committee of the U. S. Chamber and the Manufacturers Association sees it.

In addition, the joint committee has appointed William Frew Long as executive assistant to WLB industry members. The industry members have a right to keep an executive assistant on the payroll at government expense, but the significant thing about Long is that he has a labor-baiting record which takes up almost a volume in the LaFollette report.

According to the LaFollette investigation, Long was one of the chief hatchet men for anti-labor industries in Ohio. So the government has now refused to put Long on the payroll. Thus, he is serving WLB industry members without taking the oath of office and, in a strict sense, illegally.

QUESTION OF UNION MEMBERSHIP

As a result of all this, tension between industry members on one side and public-labor WLB members on the other has steadily increased.

It reached a boiling point recently over the question of the "maintenance of membership" clause in labor contracts.

This is a compromise whereby employers agree that, if a worker joins the union, he must remain in the union for the period of the labor contract, or one year. However, there is nothing to compel him to join the union. He may work indefinitely as a non-union man, and he is even given two weeks to resign from the union before the "union maintenance" agreement takes effect.

Previously, industry WLB members have voted for this as a fair war-time compromise. But recently a hot fight has developed over the case of the Humble Oil Company, a subsidiary of Standard of New Jersey. And for the first time, industry members have deviated from their previous

Deep Breathing Aid To Heart Patients

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.
SOME YEARS AGO Dr. Ed-ward H. Schaefer, of Sedalia, Missouri, was practicing in a city where he had the opportunity to examine a number of singers and vocal teachers and their pupils. He was impressed with the breathing capacity and chest expansion which their occupation had induced in them, and furthermore, that they were comparatively free from the respiratory difficulties and heart inefficiencies of others. Applying this to general practice his experience showed that if he could teach patients with heart trouble to take deep breaths systematically a great deal of the discomfort they had would go away. Much of this discomfort is due to gaseous distention of the bowels which limited the action of the lungs and had to be deliberately overcome by forced deep breathing. Patients with angina pectoris can often overcome a threatened attack by taking deep forced breaths and continuing the exercises for several minutes. Even fainting attacks can be prevented by this prolonged breathing. Many patients of this sort who had been taking remedies without benefit were made quite comfortable and free from attacks after a course of forced breathing exercises.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Benefits of Deep Breathing
The subject has certainly been neglected by the medical profession all over the world. One or two observers have written about it, but there has been no general trial of their recommendations. Dr. Louis Gottlieb Tiralda, of Munich, several years before the war, advocated breathing exercises for relief of high and low blood pressure.

In 1923 he wrote: "The mechanism-physiological procedure of deep and prolonged breathing for high blood pressure is explained by more blood being taken up in the large veins of the chest; more blood passes into the right cavities of the heart. Deep breathing increases vital capacity more than ordinary tidal breathing. Ordinarily a person of fair lung capacity is able to hold his breath after deep inhalation about twenty seconds, but one who has high blood pressure is unable to do so longer than six seconds."

The procedure is so simple that it is worth a trial, even if Dr. Tiralda's claims about the relief of high blood pressure seem somewhat exaggerated. The habit of systematic daily deep breathing exercises morning and evening might well be undertaken by all of us over thirty to help out our heart and circulation. They can be taken in bed by invalids.

Deep Breathing Exercises

"I impress upon my patients," writes Dr. Schaefer, "the importance of exhalation with the mouth open, not through the nose, and to sound the vowel 'U' thus enabling them to bring on the deepest effort of expiration. Furthermore I have the patients use this method three or four times a day and continue for five or six minutes duration. The first week they may lie down, then sit up, finally stand up, always breathing fresh air by an open window or in the open air. Even during the first few days one can determine how the patient reacts to this breathing therapy. It can be noticed that the dilated heart of hypertension becomes smaller, which may be determined by X-ray exposure.

"There is a well-known professional class, the singers, for whom deep breathing is essential in their vocation. For this reason I had one of my assistants examine opera singers in Munich. Among 100 singers there was not one of children who had high blood pressure. Although these people, as a rule, are subject to the vicissitudes of a life in a large city, retiring late at night and always under a nervous strain it was apparent that they were on a low border of blood pressure.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
W. L. M.—Are the major kidney diseases (I have diabetes and Bright's disease in mind) detected definitely in the urine?
Answer: Yes, in 99 cases out of 100. Should be checked by a blood test.

R. B.—I am 22 years of age, weight 180 pounds and am 5 ft. 5 inches in height. Am I overweight, and what drug should I use to reduce?
Answer: Your ideal weight is 134. No one should take a drug for reducing except on the advice of a physician who has had the opportunity of a personal examination. A diet, such as the Lenten Reducing Diet, which is published in this column is safe and effective.

NORTH to DANGER by TOM GILL

CHAPTER NINETEEN

A shout of warning from the trappers, and they began picking up cant hooks and shovels—anything that lay handy—while down across the dock the Crees came pouring. The crew of trappers made ready for the shock of battle.

But that battle never came. Between those two opposing groups, Selkirk and the three mounties had formed a slender barrier; then facing the Indians, Selkirk raised his hand and spoke to them in Cree.

Clear and strong, his voice carried to the farthest ranks of that angry crowd, but still they came on, swarming almost to where Selkirk stood. With head thrown back, he faced them, dominating them by the power of his presence; one by one they stopped.

Colin's heart warmed in admiration. Here was Selkirk at his best—Selkirk, remote, shy, and inarticulate in the presence of Irina.

The Crees were listening now, their eyes on Selkirk's face, and when at last the clear voice ceased, Colin saw the older Indians nod in approval, and he knew Selkirk had won.

A moment later the police sergeant laid his hand on the shoulder of the trapper who had started the trouble.

"Police barracks for you," he ordered.

The trapper opened his mouth to protest.

"Lively!" came the sharp command, and the trapper moved away. The tension was broken. Selkirk's prestige and the quick arrest of the trapper had saved the day. Slowly the Indians left the dock, and Colin's eyes turned to Dove as Tennant demanded, "Are you going to bring charges against that trapper?"

Dove shrugged. "It might be a good idea."

"It's not a good idea. It'll start trouble."

"I thought trouble was what you wanted, Nate."

Tennant's anger was rising when Selkirk intervened. "Gentlemen, isn't this something we should talk over at a better place and time?" Behind the glasses, Dove's eyes were quietly watchful. "By all means," he turned toward Nate. "We're having dinner together at the Hall. Join us, and we can talk there."

Tennant looked at Blair and consented. "I'll get these new trappers started on the trail. See you in half an hour."

Walking ahead with Blair and Irina, Dove took the lead, while Selkirk and Colin followed. Selkirk's sensitive face was lined with anxiety. "What do you make of it?" he asked.

"The whole thing looks bad."

"Bad! Only a miracle can keep blood from flowing in Learmonth this winter." Then, breaking his gloomy trend of thought, he said, "Winnipeg tried to get you on the short-wave all morning. They can't understand why you came up here, Colin, you're acting foolishly not to give them some reason."

"How can I? If I told them the truth, they'd order me back to Wolverine. And, if there were any leak, I'd be finished before I began. I've worked for the Bay Company long enough for them to trust me."

"It's not a question of trust. What you're doing is to defy discipline. You may be transferred—even dismissed. Let me write them, Colin."

"Let's wait," Rae answered. "It was nearly dusk when they reached the clearing, where their arrival was heralded by the barking of a dozen Indian dogs; and, while they waited for Tennant to join them, Dove took them through the buildings of the school—dormitories, classrooms, and last of all, the Hall, where he showed them Dr. Benedict's little hospital and the chapel."

"What's upstairs?" Colin heard Irina ask.

"Empty dormitories and an attic," Dove answered shortly.

A few minutes later Tennant joined them, and Dove led his party to one of the smaller dining rooms where two young Cree girls waited on them.

Tennant was in an expansive mood. His winter freight was safely delivered, the trapper had been released with a reprimand, and two attractive women were seated near him.

"Some of my boys were all for paying you a visit tonight," he announced to Dove. "I told them to lay off—thought you might not like it."

Dove's mild eyes seemed more benign than ever, but before he could answer, Irina turned toward him with, "Are strangers forgiven for asking stupid questions?"

Dove smiled. "I don't believe you could ask a stupid question."

"Oh, I ask dozens. But ever since I came here, I've been wondering just what your school does—what your purpose is."

About the table an expectant silence fell. Colin himself leaned forward, eager to hear Dove's own explanation.

"My purpose"—the little man spoke slowly, as if choosing his words with care—"is to bring a new kind of education to this country. I have always believed that the so-called education of the Indian has actually unfitted him for the only life he can lead—the life of the hunter and trapper. The girls are taught to cook on white men's stoves and sew on white men's sewing machines; and, when they go back to their villages, they are helpless. That is true also of the boys. By the time the mission schools are through with them, they are absolutely useless for their old life of the forests and lakes. They have become tragic misfits."

"And even if they become trappers, the Indians have always been at the mercy of the Hendrick's Bay Company and the free traders, who give them just as little for the skins as they will take."

"Well, I am changing all that. I am teaching these young men to trap and to use modern methods. I am teaching their young women to cure furs and tan leather—to make use of the skins the men bring in. And more especially, I am acting as their agent, to see that they get honest pay for their pelts instead of being bled as they have been in the past."

"This year I have two hundred Crees, ranging in age from six to eighteen. Two white teachers and five Indian teachers help me. We spend as little time in the classroom as we can, but every pupil is taught to read and do simple mathematics, and Dr. Benedict gives them a good course in hygiene. The rest is trapping." Dove stopped. "Am I boring you with all this, Miss Meredith?"

Irina shook her head. "Is trapping so hard to learn?" she asked.

Dove nodded toward Colin. "Mr. Rae can tell you that trapping is a high art. It involves a knowledge of animals whose lives depend on their watchfulness. It is a case of matching wits with creatures whose senses are of necessity much more acute than our own. And even after the animal is caught there are many ways to ruin the fur in skinning and curing."

"Naturally, I am disliked by some. The mission schools dislike me, and I am in direct competition with both Nate Tennant and your future husband. I am making it more difficult for them to buy cheap and sell high; I am able to pay the Indian more money because I want no profit myself."

With growing admiration Colin listened. It was all so reasonably, so convincingly put forward; there was just enough truth to give the whole statement a note of integrity. But now the little man was looking up at Colin. "I'd like to know what you think, Mr. Rae. We have come to look on you as an authority on the fur country."

There may have been the slightest note of derision in the placid voice, but Selkirk interrupted with a little laugh. "I don't see how Colin can disagree with what you say, Dove. Most of it is taken word for word from Colin's book. But what good does it do to teach your Crees to be trappers if there is nothing left to trap? Between you and Tennant, this country will be trapped out within two years."

"The Bay Company has been in the fur business for more than two centuries without exterminating the supply. They've done this, not by so-called 'new methods,' but by clinging to the old. They've encouraged the Indians to trap only the finest furs, to maintain their own trapping ground, to respect the breeding grounds that their people with the wisdom of centuries have established. All this you and Tennant will destroy."

Tennant's heavy fist struck the table. "You're a hundred per cent right. There's not room for us all. The day Dove decided to speed up his Indians, this country was doomed; and the day he told me to keep my trappers out, it was doomed all the quicker. As long as there's any gravel to be got, I'm going to get my share."

"And you're both headed for a collision."

WASHINGTON Report

Are Italians Responsible
For Ultimate Fate of Rome?

See United Nations Unsure
Of Italy's Complete Loyalty

By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON—On the question of the bombing of Rome now being discussed by Secretary of State Cordell Hull and Senator H. Styles Bridges, there is some opinion that here is a military problem whose responsibility is up to Italy.

It is possible that the United Nations are not yet sure of the complete loyalty of the Italian government. Certainly the Italian campaign is not going well for the United Nations. Something is obviously wrong in the conduct of this part of the war. Whether it is the bad planning of the Allies or the lack of co-operation of the Italians or the superior strength of the Germans—nobody is sure now. But the frightening fact remains, the Allies are far from realizing their hopes of taking all of Italy.

If the bombing of Rome will hasten the conquest of Nazi Italy and save many lives, then, so some hard thinking authorities say: "Let's bomb Rome. Get that much of the war over with. Tradition and the relics and symbols that keep it alive are very fine. But better a few hits on a cathedral or an art gallery or a tottering Colosseum than the loss of 20,000 lives. You can build another cathedral, prop up another Colosseum. But you can't bring back one single life."

"And, say what you will about preserving art and religious treasures, staying alive is the most important job anybody ever undertakes."

Overheard at a Sunday reception: "Will you tell me which of these people here is my hostess. I was told that she was very charming, but I haven't the faintest idea who she is." Washington is like this.

You don't suppose, do you, that the OPA's decision to make shortening and oils ration free is timed to allow a general greasing of next election day's candidates?

At least one White House aide is betting 10 to 1 that Wendell Willkie will be No. 2 on the Roosevelt ticket for 1944.

The excessively chic language classes of the capital are studying Russian. It's true. Pretty ladies who used to sharpen their wits on Culbertson are minding their double consonants on Karl Marx primers.

Spanish classes flourish in our city like dandelions on a spring grass plot. Or, make the simile "like garlic on a spring grass plot," since it is Spanish we are talking about.

Vice President Henry A. Wallace, who is about to step out on a little trip to China to tell Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek that any delay in an all-out Allied attempt to retake Burma is only temporary, speaks Spanish fluently.

Wallace was toiling away at his Russian conversation and had got as far as "Our great country loves your great country, Marshal Stalin, and we are deeply appreciative of the magnificent help you are giving us, but—what in Sam Hill are you really up to, Uncle Joe?" when the order came, "Pack up for China."

I don't pretend to understand anything very well, but it does seem that Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey's call to the draft boards to induct "A maximum number of farmers under 26" is a war-time variety of cutting off the nose to spite the face.

Is Napoleon's belief that an army travels on its stomach no longer good strategy? If it is good strategy, how do we feed the seven million of our own troops and the millions in other countries we have guaranteed to help without the work of the young farmers? Getting the lads into uniform isn't enough.

Another question suggests itself in considering this new draft-the-young-farmer plan—Are we suffering from over-production in food as well as in industry? Or—still another thought—is this move to take the men off the farms a method of bringing the war home to the middle west and other pre-war isolationist communities?

It might be a new contract or agreement, with all pertaining to writings or publicity important. Keep alert but poised.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may have a rather smooth and regulation year, with affairs moving happily in routine channels, largely literary, business, artistic or professional, with varied aspects and a probable new offer or agreement. All should proceed well but demands a vigilant and discreet eye to subtle deceptions or even fraudulent intent, this involving business as well as affectional affiliations. Use finesse and social grace rather than high words or anger.

A child born on this day should have many and diversified talents, with practical and also artistic or literary ability. It may be sensitive and high strung, inviting quick and impetuous responses from others.

Obituary

ROBERT LEE, son of Clark and Mary Dore Stevens, was born May 20, 1943 and died April 24, 1944 at the age of 10 months and 24 days. He leaves to mourn his departure, father, mother, two brothers and three sisters, Paul, 13, Richard, 2, May, 10, Jo Ann, 3 and Ruth, 6. Grandparents, Fred Stevens and Mrs. Mary Miller and great grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Sawyer, also a number of other relatives and friends.

Robert Lee was like a little rose bud. Just as this little bud was opening and all those who beheld it and admired its beauty, God deemed it best to call it back to Himself. While 'twas hard to see him go, we know that God knows best and he has escaped a world of pain and sorrow.

Another little lamb has gone to dwell with Him who gave another little darling lamb is sheltered in the grave.

God needed one more angel child amidst His shining band, and so He bent with loving smile and clasped our darling's hand.

CARD OF THANKS
We wish to thank many friends for their kindness and sympathy during the sickness and after the death of our son Robert Lee Stevens.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark Stevens.

ARMSTRONG AND PERRY SIGNED FOR AT CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, April 28—Aaron Perry, Washington's sensational lightweight, and Henry Armstrong, former triple titleholder, were signed today for a 10-round match at Griffith stadium May 22. Perry, who greatly resembles Joe Louis, is rapidly rising in the lightweight picture. The 18-year-old colored youth, fighting in the professional ranks for only a year, has won 14 of his last 15 bouts, nine by knockouts.

His only loss was a split decision to Sammy Angott, former lightweight champion.

FIRST NO-HIT GAME PITCHED BY JIM TOBIN

Dodgers Set Down 2-0
By Knuckler—Browns Win Another

NEW YORK, April 28—Jim Tobin, 31-year-old veteran right-hander from Oakland, Cal., who toils for the Boston Braves, has earned some kind of ranking as the champion all-around ball players among the pitchers currently in the business.

The burly exponent of a knuckler that butterflies up to the plate as though yanked by fidgety strings has entered the baseball hall of fame on two counts—the last being yesterday when he handcuffed the Brooklyn Dodgers with the first no-hit game since Lon Warneke beat Cincinnati for the St. Louis Cardinals in 1941.

He sat the Dodgers down by 2 to 0, allowing his old pal of Pittsburgh days, Paul Waner, to get on base twice through walks. He also hit a home run to help his own cause and with that homer reminded his few followers at Braves field yesterday that only last year he set a record for pitchers by hitting three homers in one game.

His performance yesterday completely overshadowed even the continuing stampede of the St. Louis Browns, who broke the American League record for victories at the start of the season by making it eight in a row against the Cleveland Indians, 5 to 1.

Tobin walked Waner to open the game and Waner expired on second base. With two out in the ninth, the pestiferous Waner waited another base on balls and the side then was retired with Waner being the only Dodger to set foot on base. Only six balls were knocked out of the infield and Tobin maintained the finest pitching record of the season.

In his first start of the year, he allowed the New York Giants only three hits but lost the game by 2 to 1 by virtue of a Mel Ott homer. In his next start he gave the Braves their only victory up to yesterday. On that occasion, last Sunday, he held the Philadelphia Phillies to one hit and beat them on a shutout.

His record now is 25 consecutive scoreless innings and only four hits in 26 innings.

His victim yesterday was Fred Ostermuller, who pitched a five-hitter.

Nelson Potter hurled the Browns' eighth win in a row and effectively scattered seven Cleveland hits to pull his club within one win of a tie for the major league season-opening mark held jointly by the 1918 Giants and the 1940 Dodgers.

Bob Swift's two-base hit with two on in the 12th gave the Detroit Tigers a 2 to 0 win over the Chicago White Sox as Hal Newhouse beat Thornton Lee in a hurling duel in the day's only other American League game.

The National League schedule was completed with a 3 to 2 victory for St. Louis over Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI DOWNED BY FAST LANCASTER NINE

Circleville lost a top-sided hardball game to Lancaster in a game played at the Fairfield county capital. The locals gained only one hit while Lancaster was gathering 11 and went down by a score of 10 to 0. The Circleville battery was Grubb and DeLong and for Lancaster was Dickey and Groves.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

MINIMIZE THE DAMAGE

IF CERTAIN defeat of your contract depends, your job is to keep the damage as low as possible. Especially if defensive ruffs are in sight, you should generally try to limit them by leading trumps at your earliest opportunity. This may mean passing up a chance to take a finesse in the suit which is led, in order to give yourself an earlier opportunity to fire a trump at the defenders.

THE PARKER FAMILY

The question of just how useful a woman is on a fishing expedition comes up in "The Parker Family," when Richard and his father set out in search of a few "Poor Fish" on Friday. Richard's sister Nancy and his girl friend Louise are turned down flatly when they ask if they may come along, and so they organize a separate (and highly successful) expedition of their own. Leading roles in this comedy-drama are played by Michael O'Day, Jay Kostyn, Mitzi Gould and Patricia Ryan.

HOURLY CHARM

Elizabeth Schaar, young Los Angeles contralto, competes as a semi-finalist in the "Hour of Charm's" search for a "Singing Cinderella" on the broadcast Sunday. She sings the Rodgers and Hart song, "Falling in Love with Love," in an otherwise all-Russian program featuring Phil Spitalny and the all-girl orchestra and choir. Selections include "Russian Sailor Dance," by the orchestra; "The Nightingale," sung by the soprano Vivien; "Two Sparkling Eyes," by the orchestra; "Song of the Volga Boatmen," by the choir; "Dark Eyes," played by the violinist Evelyn; and the hymn of the evening, Shostakovitch's "United Nations," dedicated to the fighting men of all the United Nations.

VICTOR JORY TO STAR

Victor Jory, popular screen and stage star, will be featured on "Green Valley, USA," Sunday. Jory will play the part of a Green Valley newspaper editor whose stirring editorial on why everyone must participate in the war effort leads to the disclosure that his own brother is a draft dodger. How the editor meets the problem makes one of the most highly dramatic programs in the series, produced by Hi Brown.

SOPHIE TUCKER

Sophie Tucker, pounds lighter and with the title of "author" is ushered in the portals of "Radio Hall of Fame" Sunday. Sophie will sing the tunes tailored to her style, and plug her autobiography "Some of These Days," the title of which was taken from the song that has been her theme for two decades. The guest sings to the music of Paul Whiteman's orchestra. Deems Taylor emcees.

RADIO NEWS NOTES

Morton Lowe, tenor, one of this year's winners of a Metropolitan Opera contract has been engaged for ten weeks of Summer opera. He will sing two weeks with the St. Louis Municipal Opera Company and four each with the Dallas, Texas, and Memphis, Tenn. Opera Companies.

Whitney Ford, the Duke of Paducah heard on NBC's "Grand Ole Opry," has two wives, and he doesn't care who knows it. Of course, one of them, "the fattest woman he's ever seen," is only an imaginary creature who furnishes meat for many of his jokes when he's on the air. His real wife Pauline is a very attractive lady who has been Mrs. Ford for 14 years.

Julian Funt, the writer of "Joyce Jordan, M. D.," is a student of psychology and is therefore in his element while writing the current episodes of the serial which deal with psycho-analysis. "Dr. Jordan" is the patient this time.

Ken Darby is back at his radio job of directing the "Top of the Evening" male chorus and The King's Men, after a ten-day bout with pneumonia. One of those happiest over his return was short, stocky top tenor "Bud" Linn, who during Ken's absence directed the 16-voice men's group. Bud's so short that in order for all the men to see him during their songs he had to stand on an extra high platform, and then conduct on tiptoe. Keeping the chorus balanced was comparatively easy, said Bud, but keeping himself in balance at the same time was a difficult achievement.

Liquor is a funny thing, thinks John Hoyerstadt. Says he: "Many a man who tries to drown his troubles in drink finds he has only irrigated them!"

Ginny Simms was writing a letter at her "Johnny Presents" rehearsal the other day. She finished with the words: "I tell you more, but there's a snoring orchestra leading over my shoulder, reading every word I write." Just then she heard maestro Ray Block yell from behind: "That's a confounded lie, Ginny Simms!"

County Draft Contingent for May To Set High Mark

SEVERE DRAIN TO BE IMPOSED ON LOCAL POOL

Only Single Men And Fathers Under 26 Scheduled For Summons

NOTICES PLACED IN MAIL

Record Call Surprises Draft Board, But Work On Assembly Starts

Pickaway county in May will send its largest draft contingent of the war to Columbus for pre-induction physical examination. The call, which far surpasses the 120 record to date, will impose a severe drain on the local existing manpower pool.

Only single men and pre-war fathers 26 years old or younger may be included in the call. Following their physical examinations and service classifications the men in the record group will be returned to the county and await their call to duty which probably will come in June.

Notices are being sent out to men already accepted for duty and who are to report for service this month. This group also is composed of men in the 26 and younger classification. These men passed their physical examinations April 4.

The new record pre-induction physical examination call was a surprise to the local board. Recently it was announced that the existing pool probably would meet service requirements for several months, but if the new call is indication of others to follow the county faces the severest manpower drain of the war in the next few months.

RACE PROBLEMS DISCUSSED AT ROTARY MEET

"Racial Problems" was the subject of which Dr. Ganz Little, pastor of the Broad street Presbyterian church, Columbus, spoke to the members of the Rotary club at their Thursday meeting in the Pickaway Arms restaurant. Dr. Little made a sincere plea to those present to give this matter serious consideration and study. He said that people in general should give a more serious consideration of these problems as they are far more serious than the average citizen realizes.

Mayor Frank J. Lausche of the city of Cleveland and Democratic candidate for Governor of the State of Ohio was a guest member at the meeting and he spoke briefly of the racial question after Dr. Little's talk. Mr. Lausche told of some of the problems that have confronted the officials of Ohio's largest city, in that matter, and how they were handled.

CONDITION SERIOUS

The condition of Mrs. Ethel Leonard of near Ashville who suffered a stroke last Thursday night remains serious. Her sister, Mrs. Mabel Isham, Columbus, is with her. Mrs. Leonard's illness was not discovered until last Sunday when neighbors called to see her. Miss Sadie Hoover of Darbyville who has been seriously ill at the home of Mrs. Isham was removed to the home of her niece, Mrs. George Bochard in Williamsport.

desire to cooperate with labor on union maintenance. This time, obviously acting on instructions from the new joint committee of the Manufacturers Association and the U. S. Chamber, the industry members have prepared a blistering minority report urging Humble Oil to defy the War Labor Board and go to court. Their minority decision hasn't been made public yet. But unless they change their minds, the WLB will be pretty much in open warfare when it is.

NOTE—Considered significant is the fact that James Tanham, Texas Oil Company executive, is an alternate industry member of the WLB.

ARMY-NAVY BATTLE

Naval officers are chortling to themselves over an official naval order issued in the South Pacific for the protection of Army privies. Though a big joke in the Navy, the Army didn't consider it a joke at first and asked for a copy of the order.

What happened was that U. S. destroyers were in the habit of steaming through a certain narrow strait between two islands with such speed that the waves thrown up by the warships almost upset the Army's wooden out-houses built on stilts along the shoreline.

In fact, destroyer captains got such a kick out of knocking over Army privies with the swell kicked up by the ship's wake that they would paint hash-marks on the bridge, like notches cut in a rifle, to show how many out-houses had been decapitated.

Then along came an official order, with the notation at the top: "Cincpac" (commander-in-chief in Pacific), "Comsopac" (commander-in-South Pacific), and "Comdespac" (commander of destroyers in Pacific). It read as follows: "Unless urgency demands, vessels" this squadron will not use speeds in excess of 25 knots in—Strait. It has been observed that wake from this speed gives Army privies built out over the water a good flushing without damaging them. Practice of painting a hash-mark under picture of privy on the bridge for each one knocked down will be discontinued."

The order is signed "Commander Mansfield, Commander Lindley, Commander Outerbridge and Commander Elliot."

GIRL PUT UNDER $1,000 BOND IN JUVENILE CASE

Pauline Hettinger, 20, Adelphi was arrested by the Ross county sheriff Monday on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a 17-year-old boy. She was placed under a $1,000 bond for appearance before Judge Stevens in Ross county juvenile court next Monday. In default of bond the girl remained in the county jail at Chillicothe.

Judge Stevens said the bond was ordered because false information had once been given about the place of her residence and of her whereabouts when an officer of the court was sent to arrest her.

LOADED TRUCK GOES INTO DITCH NEAR CITY

Lights on the large truck-trailer of the Fred Braddock Motor company of Washington C. H., went out, the driver said and he drove too close to the side of the road which caused the trailer to overturn on Route 23 near South Bloomfield Thursday. The truck, driven by Baugh Fowler, Columbus, a discharged soldier, was enroute from the Columbus Army Air Force Supply Depot, to Portsmouth and was loaded with Government supplies. A relief truck was obtained from Washington C. H. and the overturned trailer was unloaded. A Columbus wrecker righted the trailer.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., April 18—Families of many service men from New Jersey had a break today from the 2,000 members of state medical society.

sault was one of the RAF's most concentrated, it lasted only 10 minutes. For hours afterward, however, the city was covered with a mile-high cloud of smoke and towering pillars of flame.

In Italy, infantry battles flared again in the beachhead area. American troops smashed their way into German defense lines south of Rome at three points, and also crushed two counterattacks by the Nazis against the Anzio perimeter.

On other fronts, the Fifth Army and Eighth Army engaged in increased patrol activity.

Across the Adriatic, other reverses were handed the Germans. Yugoslav partisans, who earlier this week stormed two key islands guarding the approaches to the Dalmatian coast, captured two important towns in Croatia. One of the communities occupied was Sveti Ivan Zelina, 15 miles north-east of the Nazi-held Croatian capital of Zagreb; the other was the Ivanec rail center.

Russ Make Ready

The lull in ground action on the Russo-German front continued. However, frontline dispatches said the Soviets are reconstructing their communications and Moscow circles expect a powerful new Red Army offensive to be launched momentarily.

In the Pacific, the Japs reeled under powerful blows by forces of both Gen. Douglas MacArthur and Adm. Lord Louis Mountbatten.

MacArthur, who promised to return to the Philippines, announced completion of an operation launched six days ago. The drive placed American spearheads some 500 miles closer to the Philippines and gave them powerful air bases for probable long-distance bombing raids against enemy positions in that archipelago.

High point of the campaign was the seizure of Hollandia's three vital airstrips and turning them into offensive bases for U. S. planes within the six-day period.

Meantime, within Eastern India a new tank and plane-supported counteroffensive by Allied forces near Kohima drove the Japs from several strategic positions and continued to advance. An early showdown battle was expected to be precipitated, with its purpose the complete elimination of the Jap invaders in Assam province.

MAYOR LAUSCHE MEETS BACKERS IN CIRCLEVILLE

Cleveland's mayor, Frank J. Lausche, Democratic candidate for governor, received a representative gathering of Pickaway county Democrats in the second floor parlors of the American Hotel Thursday. Mr. Lausche was enroute to Lancaster where he spoke before a Democrat rally in the Lancaster city auditorium, Thursday evening. His stay in Circleville was brief. Following the reception Mr. Lausche attended the luncheon meeting of the Rotary club, where he spoke briefly.

One of the members of Mr. Lausche's party was a photographer from Life Magazine who took a picture of a group of local men following the Rotary luncheon. Other members of the mayor's party were Edward Quinn, Cincinnati attorney, John Weetsee, former all-American football player also of Cincinnati, and Ralph Kelly, political editor of the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

policy is being handled by the secretary of state and to what extent it is being handled privately by the President.

And this is because, he said, "we see reported daily in your newspapers developments from abroad and other statements from high government officials which do not seem to fit in altogether with the words Mr. Hull has used."

Gov. Dewey's address, which was interpreted by political observers as an extension of the frequent declarations he has made in favor of post war international cooperation, emphasized that "in the first few years following the war, inevitably a major responsibility to work together will fall on the United States, Britain, Russia and China."

"They will be the strongest nations," he asserted. "They will be the nations with the greatest power to preserve peace or to undermine it."

And we have learned from the experience of two world wars, he continued, that "we cannot remain unaffected by what happens elsewhere in the world. When we cease to wage war we shall have to wage peace."

Gov. Dewey recalled that the United States had a long background of friendly working relations with Britain and China, which he said should make easy the continuation of such relations. Regarding Russia, he said "it would be stupid to ignore the fact that during the 24 years since the Soviet revolution and the German attack on Russia our relations were not of the best."

But he warned that "if after this war we relapse into the old suspicions, the future is indeed dark." He said there had been faults on both sides.

prevent us from resigning. We are not frozen in our positions."

Leslie F. Crews, retail comptroller, declared:

"I will support Mr. Avery. I am sure the other officers intend to cooperate with the government, depending, of course, on the turn of events."

A counter blow by Montgomery Ward's was expected to fall today or tomorrow with filing of a petition for an injunction to restrain Taylor and other Washington officials from entering the plant on the ground they are "trespassers."

The injunction granted the government was only one of a dramatic series of rapid-fire events in the battle between federal authorities and Ward's.

The first was the seizure of the plant on President Roosevelt's executive order and with the aid of a platoon of armed military policemen. Then came the forcible eviction of the dignified 69-year-old Avery, then the government's surprise petition for an injunction.

Stealing a march on the militant Avery, Attorney General Francis E. Biddle applied for the injunction against Avery and 15 other company officials in federal district court late yesterday only a few minutes before closing time.

Seizure of the plant was brought on by Avery's repeated refusals to obey War Labor Board directives, one of which was to extend the company's contract with the CIO United Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Employees' Union, which expired last December 7.

The union, which has about 5,500 employees eligible for membership in the Ward plants in Chicago, called a 12-day strike which ended when President Roosevelt ordered the men back to work and at the same time ordered Ward's to renew the contract. Avery refused to renew the contract and the seizure of the plant followed.

Sweden's case rests on the fact that the Allied governments saw and approved the Swedish-German trade agreements last year, which contained provision for the ball-bearing shipments now objected to.

The United States' case rests in the changed military situation. As Secretary of State Hull said:

and cranberry sauce, up 7 points; tomato juice in large containers, increased 2 points; canned or bottled dry varieties of beans (excluding soy, blackeye and garbanzo), increased 5 tomato catsup and chili sauce, up 7; raspberry and strawberry jams and preserves, up 8 points.

In announcing the point free values of the eight vegetables, Bowles explained that stocks of canned fruits and vegetables from last year must be moved out to free storage space in warehouses and encourage canners to put up as much food as possible this season.

He pointed out that the nation may have a record farm production this year but a "short supply" of canned fruits and vegetables for civilians in 1944. Increased military needs will more than offset production gains, Bowles said, with the supply for civilians expected to be about 20 percent less.

Again, Bowles urged Victory gardeners to surpass last year's production and called for two million additional gardens this Summer.

Bowles also reminded that the weather will play a big part in the nation's supply of food. Unfavorable growing weather would decrease the supply to a serious degree, he said.

The point values of canned and bottled fruits, with the exception of cranberries, remain unchanged for May. Point values on fruits were raised in March to slow down a heavy movement of such products into consuming channels.

In 940 A. D. the library of Alexandria, Egypt, was burned by order of Caliph Omar. Seven hundred thousand volumes or rolls were fed as fuel to the public baths for six months.

To Whom Concerned

History discloses that the Barch family emigrated to Pickaway County 112 years ago.

Many members of this family have been continuous residents of this county ever since. The writer has been associated with this family personally and in a business way for the past 60 years, and am pleased to say they have always enjoyed the respect and confidence of all with whom they came in contact.

pear beneath the ocean under the weight of equipment and supplies.

Secret weapons, some of which already have been used in central Pacific operations but are unknown to the Japanese since garisons which they were used against were wiped out, will be in the hands of trained men. Handling of the secret weapons is second nature to the men who already have used them against the enemy.

Airforce authorities in conjunction with the army a few months ago exhibited some of these secret weapons to war correspondents. Beyond saying that some of the weapons employ the rocket principle, information cannot be released at this time for security reasons.

This much may be said: In use against duplicates of fortification types encountered by our forces the weapons have proved shatteringly effective.

The next full-scale operation against the Japs in the Central Pacific, whether it comes today, tomorrow, or next month, was mapped long ago. Judging from the forces being assembled and the preparations being made there is no doubt of the outcome.

We are now "playing" in the enemy's front yard and we've got big "toys."

You don't mean you're going to let a chicken outsmart you

A CHICKEN KNOWS that an egg won't hatch unless you sit on it the proper length of time.

As with eggs, so with nest eggs.

The best nest egg in the world today is the War Bond. It's an incomparably safe investment. It pays $4 for every $3 you put up.

But...

In order to get that nice fat interest, you have to sit on a Bond for the proper length of time. 10 years to be exact.

You can get your money before that, any time after 60 days. But you won't get the full benefit. You lose the interest. You take your money out of the fight. You kill off savings that might be a blessing in days when money doesn't flow as freely as it does today.

Buy more War Bonds. Sit on them.

BIRDS AND PEOPLE

ONE of the finest things about this time of year is the zest with which the birds arrive and proceed about their business. They have their Spring cleaning and settling to do, much like human people, and after a little friendly loafing and visiting, how they go to it! They "whistle while they work," thus setting a good example to everybody else. Many of them are truly thankful when their human friends scatter around building material for them.

The association and comradeship of men and birds is one of the finest things in life. It is surprising what close friendships can be made when the human people go about it discreetly and avoid embarrassing the bird people by too much attention. The best way to get along with them seems to be just about the same as with human beings. That is, be gentle and kindly with them, avoid frightening them, find what food they like, and make occasional contributions to their own supply.

Such friendly ministrations are likely to be well repaid. But it's not good to pamper them too much. Like human people, they should do some foraging for themselves.

CITIES GETTING BETTER

CITY and state political gangs have just been studied in "The Big Bosses," a new book by Charles W. Van Deventer, Washington correspondent of the New York Post. Familiar figures appear, like Hague, Crump, Chicago's Kelly-Nash machine, and Pennsylvania's Pew and Grundy.

The most striking fact is not stated: the brightening of the picture since Lincoln Steffens described public corruption, near the beginning of the century. Then almost every city festered in misrule. About 15 years ago Harold Zink's book, "City Bosses in the United States," could find an example in almost every town.

Today for perfect bossdom Van Deventer cites only Albany, Jersey City, Memphis and New Orleans. They are important places, but not to be classed with New York, Pittsburgh, St. Louis and Cincinnati—all former boss-ruled cities which have now largely regained their freedom. Some are still badly administered but not to compare with their plight a generation ago.

Americans still find much room for improvement in city government, but there is no reason for despair.

Free nations may look loose and weak, but seldom go to pieces. The really weak sisters are those tightened up to look strong.

BIG BUSINESS BREWS TROUBLE

WASHINGTON—Trouble is seething inside the War Labor Board again and this time it has nothing to do with John L. Lewis. On the contrary, it is the employer members and their backstage friends, the National Association of Manufacturers and the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, who are causing the ferment.

For a long time, a frank, friendly and cooperative attitude existed between the three wings of the War Labor Board, representing industry, the public and labor. Roger Lapham, head of the American-Hawaiian Steamship Company, and George Mead, head of The Mead Corporation, paper company of Dayton, Ohio, were especially cooperative. But now, Lapham has left to be mayor of San Francisco, while Mead has been virtually shunted off the board as a result of wire-pulling from the U. S. Chamber and the National Manufacturers Association.

These two organizations have decided to dominate the industry members on the War Labor Board. Fred Crawford, former president of the Manufacturers Association, whose Thompson Products, Inc., of Cleveland has a reactionary labor record, has now organized a joint committee of the NAM and U. S. Chamber.

This committee is for the purpose of virtually instructing WLB industry members how to vote. In other words, industry members no longer are to decide an issue as they see it, but as the joint committee of the U. S. Chamber and the Manufacturers Association sees it.

In addition, the joint committee has appointed William Frew Long as executive assistant to WLB industry members. The industry members have a right to keep an executive assistant on the payroll at government expense, but the significant thing about Long is that he has a labor-baiting record which takes up almost a volume in the LaFollette report.

According to the LaFollette investigation, Long was one of the chief hatchet men for anti-labor industries in Ohio. So the government has now refused to put Long on the payroll. Thus, he is serving WLB industry members without taking the oath of office and, in a strict sense, illegally.

QUESTION OF UNION MEMBERSHIP

As a result of all this, tension between industry members on one side and public-labor WLB members on the other has steadily increased.

It reached a boiling point recently over the question of the "maintenance of membership" clause in labor contracts.

This is a compromise whereby employers agree that, if a worker joins the union, he must remain in the union for the period of the labor contract, or one year. However, there is nothing to compel him to join the union. He may work indefinitely as a non-union man, and he is even given two weeks to resign from the union before the "union maintenance" agreement takes effect.

Previously, industry WLB members have voted for this as a fair war-time compromise. But recently a hot fight has developed over the case of the Humble Oil Company, a subsidiary of Standard of New Jersey. And for the first time, industry members have deviated from their previous

Deep Breathing Aid To Heart Patients

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

SOME YEARS AGO Dr. Edward H. Schaefer, of Sedalia, Missouri, was practicing in a city where he had the opportunity to examine a number of singers and vocal teachers and their pupils. He was impressed with the breathing capacity and chest expansion which their occupation had induced in them, and furthermore, that they were comparatively free from the respiratory difficulties and heart inefficiencies of others.

Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Applying this to general practice his experience showed that if he could teach patients with heart trouble to take deep breaths systematically a great deal of the discomfort they had would go away. Much of this discomfort is due to gaseous distention of the bowels which limited the action of the lungs and had to be deliberately overcome by forced deep breathing.

Patients with angina pectoris can often overcome a threatened attack by taking deep forced breaths and continuing the exercises for several minutes. Even fainting attacks can be prevented by this prolonged breathing. Many patients of this sort who had been taking remedies without benefit were made quite comfortable and free from attacks after a course of forced breathing exercises.

Benefits of Deep Breathing
The subject has certainly been neglected by the medical profession all over the world. One or two observers have written about it, but there has been no general trial of their recommendations. Dr. Loebair Gottlieb Tirala, of Munich, several years before the war, advocated breathing exercises for relief of high and low blood pressure.

In 1923 he wrote: "The mechanical-physiological procedure of deep and prolonged breathing for high blood pressure is explained by more blood being taken up in the large veins of the chest; more blood passes into the right cavities of the heart. Deep breathing increases vital capacity more than ordinary tidal breathing. Ordinarily a person of fair lung capacity is able to hold his breath after deep inhalation about twenty seconds, but one who has high blood pressure is unable to do so longer than six seconds." The procedure is so simple that it is worth a trial, even if Dr. Tirala's claims about the relief of high blood pressure seem somewhat exaggerated. The habit of systematic daily deep breathing exercises morning and evening might well be underlined by all of us over thirty to help out our heart and circulation. They can even be taken in bed by invalids.

Deep Breathing Exercises

"I impress upon my patients," writes Dr. Schaefer, "the importance of exhalation with the mouth open, not through the nose, and to sound the vowel 'U' thus enabling them to bring on the deepest effort of expiration. Furthermore I have the patient use this method three or four times a day and continue for five or six minutes duration. The first week they may lie down, then sit up, finally stand up, always breathing fresh air by an open window or in the open air. Even during the first few days one can determine how the patient reacts to this breathing therapy. It can be noticed that the dilated heart of hypertension becomes smaller, which may be determined by X-ray exposure.

"There is a well-known professional class, the singers, for whom deep breathing is essential in their vocation. For this reason I had one of my assistants examine opera singers in Munich. Among 100 singers there was not one of either sex who had high blood pressure. Although these people, as a rule, are subject to the vicissitudes of a life in a large city, retiring late at night and always under a nervous strain it was apparent that they were on a low border of blood pressure.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
W. L. M.—Are the major kidney diseases (I have diabetes and Bright's disease in mind) detected definitely in the urine?
Answer: Yes, in 99 cases out of 100. Should be checked by a blood test.

R. B.—I am 22 years of age, weight 180 pounds and am 5 ft. 5 inches in height. Am I overweight, and what drug should I use to reduce?
Answer: Your ideal weight is 134. No one should take a drug for reducing except on the advice of a physician who has had the opportunity of a personal examination. A diet, such as the Lenten Reducing Diet, which is published in this column is safe and effective.

The procedure is so simple that people here is my hostess. I was told that she was very charming, but I haven't the faintest idea who she is." Washington is like this. You don't suppose, do you, that the OPA's decision to make shortening and oils ration free is timed to allow a general greasing of next election day's candidates?

At least one White House aide is betting 10 to 1 that Wendell Wilkie will be No. 2 on the Roosevelt ticket for 1944.

The excessively chic language classes of the capital are studying Russian. It's true. Pretty ladies who used to sharpen their wits on Culbertson are minding their double consonants on Karl Marx primers.

Spanish classes flourish in our city like dandelions on a spring grass plot. Or, make the simile "like garlic on a spring grass plot," since it is Spanish we are talking about.

Vice President Henry A. Wallace, who is about to step out on a little trip to China to tell Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek that any delay in an all-out Allied attempt to retake Burma is only temporary, speaks Spanish fluently.

Wallace was toiling away at his Russian conversation and had got as far as "Our great country loves your great country, Marshal Stalin, and we are deeply appreciative of the magnificent help you are giving us, but—what in Sam Hill are you really up to, Uncle Joe?" when the order came, "Pack up for China."

I don't pretend to understand anything very well, but it does seem that Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey's call to the draft boards to induct "A maximum number of farmers under 26" is a war-time variety of cutting off the nose to spite the face.

Is Napoleon's belief that an army travels on its stomach no longer good strategy? If it is good strategy, how do we feed the seven million of our own troops and the millions in other countries we have guaranteed to help without the work of the young farmers? Getting the lads into uniform isn't enough.

Another question suggests itself in considering this new draft-the young-farmer plan—Are we suffering from over-production in food as well as in industry? Or—still another thought—is this move to take the men off the farms a method of bringing the war home to the middle west and other pre-war isolationist communities?

CHAPTER NINETEEN

A shout of warning from the trappers, and they began picking up cant hooks and shovels—anything that lay handy—while down across the dock the Crees came pouring. The knot of trappers made ready for the shock of battle.

But that battle never came. Between those two opposing groups, Selkirk and the three mounties had formed a slender barrier; then facing the Indians, Selkirk raised his hand and spoke to them in Cree.

Clear and strong, his voice carried to the farthest ranks of that angry crowd, but still they came on, swarming almost to where Selkirk stood. With head thrown back, he faced them, dominating them by the power of his presence; one by one they stopped.

Colin's heart warmed in admiration. Here was Selkirk at his best—Selkirk, remote, shy, and inarticulate in the presence of Irina.

The Crees were listening now, their eyes on Selkirk's face, and when at last the clear voice ceased, Colin saw the older Indians nod in approval, and he knew Selkirk had won.

A moment later the police sergeant laid his hand on the shoulder of the trapper who had started the trouble.

"Police barracks for you," he ordered. The trapper opened his mouth to protest.

"Lively!" came the sharp command, and the trapper moved away. The tension was broken. Selkirk's prestige and the quick arrest of the trapper had saved the day. Slowly the Indians left the dock, and Colin's eyes turned to Dove as he came forward, dominating them by the power of his presence; one by one they stopped.

Wolverine. And, if there were any lack, I'd be finished before I began. I've worked for the Bay Company long enough for them to trust me."

"It's not a question of trust. What you're doing is to defy discipline. You may be transferred—even dismissed. Let me write them, Colin."

"Let's wait," Rae answered. It was nearly dusk when they reached the clearing, where their arrival was heralded by the barking of a dozen Indian dogs; and, while they waited for Tennant to join them, Dove took them through the buildings of the school—dormitories, classrooms, and last of all, the Hall, where he showed them Dr. Benedict's little hospital and the chapel.

"What's upstairs?" Colin heard Irina ask.

"Empty dormitories and an attic," Dove answered shortly.

A few minutes later Tennant joined them, and Dove led his party to one of the smaller dining rooms where two young Cree girls waited on them.

Tennant was in an expansive mood. His winter freight was safely delivered, the trapper had been released with a reprimand, and two attractive women were seated near him.

"Some of my boys were all for paying you a visit tonight," he announced to Dove. "I told them to lay off—thought you might not like it."

Dove's mild eyes seemed more benign than ever, but before he could answer, Irina turned toward him with, "Are strangers forgiven for asking stupid questions?"

Dove smiled. "I don't believe you could ask a stupid question."

"Oh, I ask dozens. But ever since I came here, I've been wondering just what your school does—what your purpose is."

About the table an expectant silence fell. Colin himself leaned forward, eager to hear Dove's own explanation.

"My purpose"—the little man spoke slowly, as if choosing his words with care—"it is to bring a new kind of education to this country. I have always believed that the so-called education of the Indian has actually unfitted him for the life of the hunter and trapper. The girls are taught to cook on white men's stoves and sew on white men's sewing machines; and, when they go back to their villages, they are helpless. That is true also of the boys. By the time the mission schools are through with them, they are absolutely useless for their old life of the forests and lakes. They have become tragic misfits, acting like men and women."

"And even if they become trappers, the Indians have always been at the mercy of the Hendrik's Bay Company and the free traders, who give them just as little for the skins as they will take."

"Well, I am changing all that. I am teaching these young men to trap and to use modern methods. I am teaching their young women to cure furs and tan leather—to make use of the skins the men bring in. And more especially, I am acting as their agent, to see that they get honest pay for their pelts instead of being bled as they have been in the past."

"This year I have two hundred Crees, ranging in age from six to eighteen. Two white teachers and five Indian teachers help me. We spend as little time in the classroom as we can, but every pupil is taught to read and do simple mathematics, and Dr. Benedict gives them a good course in hygiene. The rest is trapping." Dove stopped. "Am I boring you with all this, Miss Meredith?"

Irina shook her head. "Is trapping so hard to learn?" she asked. Dove nodded toward Colin. "Mr. Rae can tell you that trapping is a high art. It involves a knowledge of animals whose lives depend on their watchfulness. It is a case of matching wits with creatures whose senses are of necessity much more acute than our own. And even after the animal is caught there are many ways to ruin the fur in skinning and curing."

"Naturally, I am disliked by some. The mission schools dislike me, and I am in direct competition with both Tennant and your future husband. I am making it more difficult for them to buy cheap and sell high. I am able to pay the Indian more money because I want no credit myself."

With growing admiration Colin listened. It was all so reasonably, so convincingly put forward; there was just enough truth to give the whole statement a note of integrity. But now the little man was looking up at Colin. "I'd like to know what you think, Mr. Rae. We have come to look on you as an authority on the fur country."

"The Bay Company has been in the fur business for more than two centuries without exterminating the supply. They've done this, not by so-called 'new methods,' but by clinging to the old. They've encouraged the Indians to trap only the finest furs, to maintain their own trapping ground, to respect the breeding grounds that their people with the wisdom of centuries have established. All this you and Tennant will destroy."

Tennant's heavy fist struck the table. "You're a hundred per cent right. There's no room for us all. The day Dove decided to speed up his Indians, this country was doomed; and the day he told me to keep my trappers out, it was doomed all the quicker. As long as there's any gravel to be got, I'm going to get my share."

"And you're both headed for a collision," Colin said. "If Dove interferes, it's a finish fight."

Are Italians Responsible For Ultimate Fate of Rome? See United Nations Unsure Of Italy's Complete Loyalty

By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON—On the question of the bombing of Rome now being discussed by Secretary of State Cordell Hull and Senator H. Styles Bridges, there is some opinion that here is a military problem whose responsibility is up to Italy.

It is possible that the United Nations are not yet sure of the complete loyalty of the Italian government. Certainly the Italian campaign is not going well for the United Nations. Something is obviously wrong in the conduct of this part of the war. Whether it is the bad planning of the Allies or the lack of co-operation of the Italians or the superior strength of the Germans—nobody is sure now. But the frightening fact remains, the Allies are far from realizing their hopes of taking all of Italy.

If the bombing of Rome will hasten the conquest of Nazi Italy and save many lives, then, so some hard thinking authorities say: "Let's bomb Rome. Get that much of the war over with. Tradition and the relics and symbols that keep it alive are very fine. But better a few hits on a cathedral or an art gallery or a tottering Colosseum than the loss of 20,000 lives. You can build another cathedral, prop up another Colosseum. But you can't bring back one single life."

"And, say what you will about preserving art and religious treasures, staying alive is the most important job anybody ever undertakes."

Business Women's Club To Sponsor Foundation

To Lead Battle On Infantile Paralysis

SOCIAL CALENDAR

Business and Professional Women's club confirmed Thursday action taken at a previous meeting and assumed sponsorship of the work of the Pickaway County Chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. The work will be continued by a chapter, set up at the business meeting of the club, following an explanatory address by William H. John, state director of the National Foundation.

The work of the local chapter as outlined by the state director will consist of the raising of funds through an annual fund appeal, and the proper administration of that share of the funds raised that is left in the county, or about 50 percent.

He discussed the work as it is being administered in the 88 counties of the state.

Dr. A. D. Blackburn, who with Fred Clark and Robert Colville had been in charge of the chapter work in the county, talked briefly concerning the opportunity for the county to have a nurse sent for training in the Kenny method of treatment.

Mrs. Joe Work will be chairman of the reorganized county chapter and Mrs. W. L. Funk, Sr., will serve as vice chairman. Mrs. Harriet Hennessy will be chapter secretary and Mrs. Anna Chandler will serve as treasurer. This is not a new chapter, the chapter as reorganized is taking over and continuing the work in the county. A medical advisory committee will be set up in connection with the work.

Miss Rose Good conducted the business hour that followed an excellent cooperative supper at 7 p. m. She presented Mr. John and named new officers for the sponsored chapter. Miss Rebecca Gordon, secretary, reported, and Mrs. George Barnes, assisted by members, completed a state report.

About 30 members and guests were present for the dinner hour, the attractive tables being centered with lovely arrangements of Spring flowers, gifts of the Misses Lida and Bess Fry.

Ashville-Harrison P.-T.A.

More than 100 were present at the meeting of the Ashville-Harrison Parent-Teacher association Thursday in the school auditorium and heard the fine talk on "Our Need for Faith", by the Rev. Carl Kennedy of the Presbyterian church. This talk continued the year theme of the association, "Our Needs."

Several numbers were played by the high school orchestra.

Mrs. Roger Hedges and her staff of officers were reelected for the coming year. During the business hour, it was voted by the association that a War bond was to be purchased during the next drive. The group also voted a donation of $25 to the Pickaway county Youth Canteen.

Group Institute

A group Institute of Circleville and Salem unions was held Wednesday at the Kingston Methodist church with Miss Mary L. Harpster, president of the Kingston Union and also county president, in charge. She presented Mrs. Lawrence Warner, president of the Circleville union, who presided at the affair. Mrs. F. J. Batterson conducted an impressive devotional service.

Sharia LaVon Snyder was enrolled as a white ribbon recruit, with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilkin, taking part in the service. David A. Leist, son of Mrs. Edith Leist, was also enrolled.

Mrs. Wilkin conducted the afternoon devotionals. Mrs. J. O. Eagleson discussed, "What the Church Woman Can Do to Bring About Prohibition." ## FIRST NO-HIT GAME PITCHED BY JIM TOBIN

Dodgers Set Down 2-0 By Knuckler—Browns Win Another

NEW YORK, April 28—Jim Tobin, 31-year-old veteran right-hander from Oakland, Cal., who toils for the Boston Braves, has earned some kind of ranking as the champion all-around ball player among the pitchers currently in the business.

The burly exponent of a knuckler that butterflies up to the plate as though yanked by fidgety strings has entered the baseball hall of fame on two counts—the last being yesterday when he handcuffed the Brooklyn Dodgers with the first no-hit game since Lon Warneke beat Cincinnati for the St. Louis Cardinals in 1941.

He sat the Dodgers down by 2 to 0, allowing his old pal of Pittsburgh days, Paul Waner, to get on base twice through walks. He also hit a home run to help his own cause and with that homer reminded his few followers at Braves field yesterday that only last year he set a record for pitchers by hitting three homers in one game.

His performance yesterday completely overshadowed even the continuing stampede of the St. Louis Browns, who broke the American League record for victories at the start of the season by making it eight in a row against the Cleveland Indians, 5 to 1.

Tobin walked Waner to open the game and Waner expired on second base. With two out in the ninth, the pestiferous Waner waited out another base on balls and the side then was retired with Waner being the only Dodger to set foot on base. Only six balls were knocked out of the infield and Tobin maintained the finest pitching record of the season.

In his first start of the year, he allowed the New York Giants only three hits but lost the game by 2 to 1 by virtue of a Mel Ott homer.

In his next start he gave the Braves their only victory up to yesterday. On that occasion, last Sunday, he held the Philadelphia Phillies to one hit and beat them on a shutout.

His record now is 25 consecutive scoreless innings and only four hits in 26 innings.

His victim yesterday was Fred Ostermuller, who pitched a five-hitter.

Nelson Potter hurled the Browns' eighth win in a row and effectively scattered seven Cleveland hits to pull his club within one win of a tie for the major league season-opening mark held jointly by the 1918 Giants and the 1940 Dodgers.

Bob Swift's two-base hit with two out in the 12th gave the Detroit Tigers a 2 to 0 win over the Chicago White Sox as Hal Newhouse beat Thornton Lee in a hurling duel in the day's only other American League game.

The National League schedule was completed with a 3 to 2 victory for St. Louis over Cincinnati.

"The Authority on Authorities"

MINIMIZE THE DAMAGE

IF CERTAIN defeat of your contract depends, your job is to keep the damage as low as possible. Especially if defensive ruffs are in sight, you should generally try to limit them by leading trumps at your earliest opportunity. This may mean passing up a chance to take a finesse in the suit which is led, in order to give yourself an earlier opportunity to fire a trump at the defenders.

THE PARKER FAMILY

The question of just how useful a woman is on a fishing expedition comes up in "The Parker Family," when Richard and his father set out in search of a few "Poor Fish." On Friday, Richard's sister Nancy and his girl friend Louise are turned down flatly when they ask if they may come along, and so they organize a separate (and highly successful) expedition of their own. Leading roles in this comedy-drama are played by Michael O'Day, Jay Jostyn, Mitzi Gould and Patricia Ryan.

HOURLY CHARM

Elizabeth Schaaf, young Los Angeles contralto, competes as a semi-finalist in the "Hour of Charm's" search for a "Singing Cinderella," on the broadcast Sunday. She sings the Rodgers and Hart song, "Falling in Love with Love," in an otherwise all-Russian program featuring Phil Spitalny and the all-girl orchestra and choir. Selections include "Russian Sailor Dance," by the orchestra; "The Nightingale," sung by the soprano Vivien; "Two Sparkling Eyes," by the orchestra; "Song of the Volga Boatmen," by the choir; "Dark Eyes," played by the violinist Evelyn; and the hymn of the evening, Shostakovich's "United Nations," dedicated to the fighting men of all the United Nations.

VICTOR JORY TO STAR

Victor Jory, popular screen and stage star, will be featured on "Green Valley, USA," Sunday. Jory will play the part of a Green Valley newspaper editor whose stirring editorial on why everyone must participate in the war effort leads to the disclosure that his own brother is a draft dodger. How the editor meets the problem makes one of the most highly dramatic programs in the series, produced by Hi Brown.

SOPHIE TUCKER

Sophie Tucker, pounds lighter and with the title of "author" is ushered in the portals of "Radio Hall of Fame" Sunday.

Sophie will sing the tunes tailored to her style, and plug her autobiography "Some of These Days," the title of which was taken from the song that has been her theme for two decades.

The guest sings to the music of Paul Whiteman's orchestra. Deems Taylor emcees.

RADIO NEWS NOTES

Morton Lowe, tenor, one of this year's winners of a Metropolitan Opera contract has been engaged for ten weeks of Summer opera. He will sing two weeks with the St. Louis Municipal Opera Company and four each with the Dallas, Texas, and Memphis, Tenn. Opera Companies.

Whitey Ford, the Duke of Paducah heard on NBC's "Grand Ole Opry," has two wives. . . and he doesn't care who knows it! Of course, one of them, "the fattest woman he's ever seen," is only an imaginary creature who furnishes meat for many of his jokes when he's on the air. His real wife Pauline, is a very attractive lady who has been Mrs. Ford for 14 years.

Julian Funt, the writer of "Joyce Jordan, M. D.," is a student of psychology and is therefore in his element while writing the current episodes of the serial which deal with psycho-analysis. "Dr. Jordan" is the patient this time.

Ken Darby is back at his radio job of directing the "Top of the Evening" male chorus and The King's Men, after a ten-day bout with pneumonia. One of those happiest over his return was short, stocky top tenor "Bud" Linn, who during Ken's absence directed the 16-voice men's group. Bud's so short that in order for all the men to see him during their songs he had to stand on an extra high platform, and then conduct on tiptoe. Keeping the chorus balanced was comparatively easy, said Bud, but keeping himself in balance at the same time was a difficult achievement.

Liquor is a funny thing, thinks John Hoyt. Says he: "Many a man who tries to drown his troubles in drink finds he has only irrigated them!"

Ginny Simms was writing a letter at her "Johnny Presents" rehearsal the other day. She finished with the words: "I tell you more, but there's a snoring orchestra leader looking over my shoulder, reading every word I write." Just then she heard maestro Ray Block yell from behind: "That's a confounded lie, Ginny Simms!"

County Draft Contingent for May To Set High Mark

SEVERE DRAIN TO BE IMPOSED ON LOCAL POOL

Only Single Men And Fathers Under 26 Scheduled For Summons

NOTICES PLACED IN MAIL

Record Call Surprises Draft Board, But Work On Assembly Starts

Pickaway county in May will send its largest draft contingent of the war to Columbus for pre-induction physical examination. The call, which far surpasses the 120 record to date, will impose a severe drain on the local existing manpower pool.

Only single men and pre-war fathers 26 years old or younger may be included in the call. Following their physical examinations and service classifications the men in the record group will be returned to the county and await their call to duty which probably will come in June.

Notices are being sent out to men already accepted for duty and who are to report for service this month. This group also is composed of men in the 26 and younger classification. These men passed their physical examinations April 4.

The new record pre-induction physical examination call was a surprise to the local board. Recently it was announced that the existing pool probably would meet service requirements for several months, but if the new call is indication of others to follow the county faces the severest manpower drain of the war in the next few months.

RACE PROBLEMS DISCUSSED AT ROTARY MEET

"Racial Problems" was the subject of which Dr. Ganz Little, pastor of the Broad street Presbyterian church, Columbus, spoke to the members of the Rotary club at their Thursday meeting in the Pickaway Arms restaurant. Dr. Little made a sincere plea to those present to give this matter serious consideration and study. He said that people in general should give a more serious consideration of these problems as they are far more serious than the average citizen realizes.

Mayor Frank J. Lausche of the city of Cleveland and Democratic candidate for Governor of the State of Ohio was a guest member at the meeting and he spoke briefly of the racial question after Dr. Little's talk. Mr. Lausche told of some of the problems that have confronted the officials of Ohio's largest city, in that matter, and how they were handled.

CONDITION SERIOUS

The condition of Mrs. Ethel Leonard of near Ashville who suffered a stroke last Thursday night remains serious. Her sister, Mrs. Mabel Isham, Columbus, is with her. Mrs. Leonard's illness was not discovered until last Sunday when neighbors called to see her. Miss Sadie Hoover of Darbyville who has been seriously ill at the home of Mrs. Isham was removed to the home of her niece, Mrs. George Bochard in Williamsport.

desire to cooperate with labor on union maintenance.
This time, obviously acting on instructions from the new joint committee of the Manufacturers Association and the U. S. But unless they change their minds, the WLB will be pretty much in open warfare with it.

NOTE—Considered significant is the fact that James Tanham, Texas Oil Company executive, is an alternate industry member of the WLB.

ARMY-NAVY BATTLE
Naval officers are chortling to themselves over an official naval order issued in the South Pacific for the protection of Army privies. Though a big joke in the Navy, the Army didn't consider it a joke at first and asked for a copy of the order.

What happened was that U. S. destroyers were in the habit of steaming through a certain narrow strait between two islands with such speed that the waves thrown up by the warships almost upset the Army's wooden out-houses built on stilts along the shoreline.

In fact, destroyer captains got such a kick out of knocking over Army privies with the swell that they would paint hash-marks on the bridge, like notches cut in a rifle, to show how many out-houses had been decapitated.

Then along came an official order, with the notation at the top: "Cincpac" (commander-in-chief in Pacific), "Comsopac" (commander-in-South Pacific), and "Comdespac" (commander of destroyers in Pacific). It read as follows: "Unless urgency demands, vessels of this squadron will not use speeds in excess of 25 knots in—Strait. It has been observed that wake from this speed gives Army privies built out over the water a good flushing without damaging them. Practice of painting a hash-mark under picture of privy on the bridge for each one knocked down will be discontinued."

The order is signed "Commander Mansfield, Commander Lindley, Commander Outerbridge and Commander Elliot."

NOTE—The name of the strait is omitted here for security reasons.

GIRL PUT UNDER $1,000 BOND IN JUVENILE CASE

Pauline Hettinger, 20, Adelphi was arrested by the Ross county sheriff Monday on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a 17-year-old boy. She was placed under a $1,000 bond for appearance before Judge Stevens in Ross county juvenile court next Monday. In default of bond the girl remained in the county jail at Chillicothe.

Judge Stevens said the bond was ordered because false information had once been given about the place of her residence and of her whereabouts when an officer of the court was sent to arrest her.

LOADED TRUCK GOES INTO DITCH NEAR CITY

Lights on the large truck-trailer of the Fred Braddock Motor company of Washington C. H., went out, the driver said and he drove too close to the side of the road which caused the trailer to overturn on Route 23 near South Bloomfield Thursday. The truck, driven by Baugh Fowler, Columbus, a discharged soldier, was enroute from the Columbus Army Air Force Supply Depot, to Portsmouth and was loaded with Government supplies. A relief truck was obtained from Washington C. H. and the overturned trailer was unloaded. A Columbus wrecker righted the trailer.
